ON PRECEDENTS.

With wonderful pertinacity the Colonist persists in keeping up the precedent discussion. Notwithstanding the fact that THE TIMES from its own columns proved the Colonist to be as inconsistent as it is unreliable, that in fact the writer of the articles was grossly ignorant of the topic whereon he was writing; that he became so mixed and muddled in his statements that many were compelled to draw inferences the reverse of favorable to the author of the articles and its whilom editor, who in 1882, day after day, howled and brayed for the resignation of the BEAVEN government, whose defeat was no more certain than was that of the Ross government in the late contest in Quebec. Our excessively dense neighbor failed, as a matter of course, to comprehend any analogy between the two cases. Here it had been so long in the cold shades of opposition that it was perfectly ravenous for the spoils of office. The editor's cupidity overcame every other consideration. To him the flesh pots were within his sight. It was a case of "so near and yet so far." The picture presented to the public of the former and present attitude of the erratic Colonist so completely knocked our esteemed contemporary out of time that were he not possessed of an amount of brazen faced assurance that is positively amazing it would drop the subject, for no one knows better than itself that it has become the laughing stock of all who are familiar with the subject it assumed to be so conversant with. Its "precedents" were found to be no precedents at all; they were as misleading as it was possible they could be. When the organ again essays to educate people on constitutional points it should be certain that it is right itself, otherwise it is a case of the blind leading the blind, and certain to fall into a pit from which THE TIMES will endeavor to extricate our erring contemporary, no matter how unpleasant, or galling it may be to that erratic sheet to be put on the straight road to teach the truth, honesty and respectability, for in all of these it has much need to be educated. It matters little to us whether the oracle disclaims any connection with its sentiments of 1882 or not. The precedents it chose to name were prior to that date; hence it is impossible for it to escape from that horn of the dilemma on which THE TIMES and public opinion has placed it. But our contemporary does not wish it to be told in Gath or proclaimed in Askalon that its knowledge of Canadian precedents is prodigiously astray, and its conclusions entirely misleading. If it had taken the advice of genuine friends it would have thrown up the sponge long since, for the more it discusses the question the deeper it gets into the mire, rendering it a matter of greater difficulty to extricate itself. But in the quagmire for the present we leave it.

THE QUEEN'S JUBILEE.

The Ceremony Which is to Take Place in Westminster Abbey—The Queen to be Surrounded by Princes, Ambassadors, Peers and Great Officers of State in Gorgeous Array.

A London cablegram gives the following particulars anent the forthcoming Queen's jubilee: The Queen has decided, after some hesitation, that the thanksgiving service in honor of her jubilee should be held on Monday, June 20th, at 3 o'clock, in Westminster Abbey, and not in St. Paul's Cathedral, as had been generally anticipated. Efforts were made to secure a different decision, but unsuccessfully, a fact which is greatly to be regretted, as St. Paul's Cathedral is admirably adapted for such a ceremonial, while the Abbey is the worst possible place for it. The service in the Cathedral, where it ought to be according to all precedent, would have involved a procession from one end of London to the other, while the progress from Buckingham Palace to the grand entrance at the Abbey will be a no greater affair than the mere opening of Parliament. At St. Paul's everybody could be quite well accommodated, whereas at the Abbey the bulk of the congregation will be in the nave, and as the organ-screen shuts them off from the choir, they will neither hear nor see much of the service. It is to be hoped that the matter will be reconsidered, and that the Queen may be induced to consent to have the great and solemn function held in St. Paul's, which certainly is the proper place for it. Nothing has been settled as to the order of the divine service, but it will be very short, principally musical, with a brief sermon by the Primate. The Abbey will be given up to the Lord Chamberlain by the Dean as on the occasion of a coronation, and all the necessary arrangements will be made by the Great Officers of the Household. According to a sketch of the order of the proposed ceremony there is to be a procession up the nave into the choir of the Queen, the royalties, the ambassadors, the Great Officers of State, the Ministers, the Speaker and other personages. The service will also be attended officially by the peers of the realm, the peeresses, the Privy Councillors, the Judges, the Members of the House of Commons, the Members of Convocation, the Lord Lieutenants of the counties, the Lord Mayor of London, the Lord Provosts of Edinburgh and Glasgow, the Lord Mayors of York and Dublin, the Chancellors and Vice-Chancellors of the universities, and others, all in full dress.

"A SHADOW."

PROGRESSIVE JAPAN.

A People Who Are Fast Advancing in the Ways of Civilization.

Christianity Rapidly Establishing Itself Amongst the Intellectual Classes.

The people of Japan are fast advancing in the civilization of their political, moral, and intellectual lives. In the customs of dress there has been a marked change during the last decade, until now the officials and the better classes assume the English costume. Among the former it is compulsory, and upon the street the old Japanese garb is seldom seen except on the poorer classes. Among the ladies, however, the loose gowns of the olden days are still popular, but even these are gradually becoming obsolete, and at the fashionable balls the European dress is generally assumed, while the programmes of the Japanese orchestras generally include the best of English music. The odd yet picturesque style of hair dressing which has so long prevailed in the country has been superseded by that of the American women, and the fair foreheads of the royal ladies are already hidden by the bang so common in our own country. The fashions, however, are not set by the Empress. The style adopted by the ministers' wives is considered quite the proper thing, and following their example, all ladies of culture have stopped blacking their teeth and shaving their eyebrows.

THE INTELLECTUAL PROGRESS

of the people of Japan has been almost unparalleled. Not only has the educational system been established all over the empire, but the capital city boasts of a university that can compare favorably with the best colleges of the Continent. German professors, prominent for scientific works and research, have filled the chair in the scientific and medical departments of the Imperial University, while literature, both ancient and modern, English and American, of advanced thought have been chosen instructors. Recently the staff of foreign professors has been diminished and the vacancies filled by Japanese literati who have returned from study abroad. The works of Huxley, Spencer, Darwin and others have been translated into Japanese, and are familiar handbooks to students in Japan. The promulgators of Christianity find that they have a proud skepticism to contend with. The Japanese talk of the

and the nebular hypothesis as glibly as our learned men. Buddhism is still the predominating faith, but Christianity is rapidly establishing itself among the more intellectual classes, although many of the high officials express extreme bitterness to the doctrine and its introduction. This bitterness is so great that to profess Christianity means the loss of an official position. The people are not conservative, however, and it is only a matter of time when the Christian faith will be accepted throughout the country. In all the large cities public schools are maintained, and it is compulsory that after attaining a certain age children shall be sent to school. In Tokio there are two large law schools, one of which is conducted in the French and the other in the English language. Added to these is an engineering college, with over 20,000 volumes, and its extensive laboratories, which have been recently merged with the Imperial College.

POLITICAL AFFAIRS

are not behind in the onward march of civilization, and the chief excitement of the country now is the preparation for the National Assembly promised for 1890. The ground is already purchased and the Assembly buildings commenced, although there is naturally some misapprehension on the part of suspicious minds that the Government may not carry out its promises to the people. As it now stands, the Government is in the hands of the Emperor, assisted by the Senate and House of Lords, which in the Japanese is called "Gen-ro-in." The National Assembly will be composed of representatives elected by the people from the various districts, thus making the empire a partial republic. Laws regarding press criticism and public speech are very stringent, and in neither is criticism of the government allowed. Regarding Japan's relations with America I am able to speak at length. My visit to this country is in the interest of an extension of the mercantile traffic. The United States and its people are regarded with great respect by the Japanese, and in their eyes, as the Fiji Shimpo, one of the leading journals, expresses it, America stands out in the world like a blossoming plum branch among a thicket of brambles, diffusing a rich fragrance and compelling the admiration of all for her great name and vigorous policy.

CALGARY IN ASHES.

A telegram was received by Messrs. H. F. Heisterman & Co. from Mr. Tudor Tiedeman, who has reached New Westminster on his return trip from Winnipeg, where he had been on a visit for the past three weeks, announcing that a rumor was current along the line that Calgary had been reduced to ashes. But no further particulars are given. Calgary was a newly built town; the buildings in which were of lumber. The population was estimated at between 1500 and 2000. If the report should turn out to be correct it will be a most unfortunate one for the embryo city at the base of the mountains. The winter having set in and the inhabitants left houseless and homeless, the calamity is about as dire a one as it is possible to visit a place with. Further particulars will be eagerly looked for.

Mr. Tiedeman also states that he had encountered a couple of bad accidents, but does not mention their nature.

—Breech loading guns and rifles of the manufacture of Messrs. Westley Richards & Co., are for sale by Messrs. Findlay, Durham & Brodie, Victoria.

—A Collard & Collard piano at a greatly reduced price can be had from Messrs. Findlay, Durham & Brodie, Wharf street.

—Messrs. Findlay, Durham & Brodie are to-day landing ex the Arica, Dunville's famous whiskey, for which they are the sole agents in British Columbia.

—There was a very slight flurry of snow about 7:30 last night. It only lasted a minute or two, and was so light as to be scarcely perceptible.

—Mr. M. Lenz, finding his old warerooms on Government street too small for his increasing trade has removed to his new quarters next door north of Mr. Ofner's grocery. In his new quarters Mr. Lenz will have ample room to make a fine display of his goods, for he has leased the whole of the flat over Mr. Ofner's store as well as over his own.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

A NEEDED WORK.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—Will you kindly permit me, through the medium of your paper, to bring a matter of importance before your numerous readers, namely, the need of society in this city, composed of ladies and gentlemen, who would take an active interest in the prisoners confined in the jail. Among those now in jail a large number are young men, not hardened criminals, but who are evidently in for the first time; and it is the opinion of many with whom I have talked that if we had a society with funds, but more especially with good judgment and warm, kind hearts, many of those young men might be rescued from leading criminal lives; and, sir, I think every right-thinking person will agree with me that we can't afford to let these young men go to the bad. To commit wrong doers to prison is needful for punishment, but I never knew such measures to reform them. There are young men now in our jail who will soon be at liberty, and are strangers here. What are the kindhearted folks of Victoria going to do with them, and for them? I do not advocate charity, as that only pauperizes; but help a poor unfortunate brother to help himself. Speak a kind word to him; appeal to his manhood—they are all somebody's darling boys. I am only a working man, and have neither the time nor money to do this work, but would gladly help, and I feel sure their are plenty of kindhearted people in this city who are willing to take hold of it if they only realized its importance. I hope it may be taken up in the name of Jesus and for his sake; then it will be well done.

SYMPATHY.

Victoria, Nov. 7, 1886.

THE AMERICAN CLUB.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—Noticing in this morning's issue of the Standard a lengthy puff about the American Club's first hop at the Theatre Comique last Friday night, permits me to use your fearless columns for a few remarks. If Consul Stevens was invited to the hop he was conspicuously invisible. I have further to state that every one I saw apply for admission got the same for 50 cents, and some were slightly under the influence of liquor. Permit me to add that no club that aspires to be thoroughly respectable, in the way of social dances, should have a bar where liquors are sold. All these are simple facts, and I am an American, but "draw the line at the proper place in everything" is my motto.

ONE WHO WAS PRESENT.

THE SNOW SHEDS.

Preparing for Snow Slides in the Selkirks—The Sheds Completed—An Army of Men to be Retained for the Winter.

Mr. A. Green, inspector of snow sheds, accompanied by Mr. J. A. Griffith, C. E., who visited this city last week, have returned to the scene of their labors in the Selkirks. The erection of the sheds began in June last. These are of these a total of five miles, extending over a distance of 20 miles. The snowfall in the mountains for the summer is reported to have been light, so that few, if any, slides are expected during the winter or spring. Already a description of the style in which the sheds are built appeared in THE TIMES. Over 3,000 men have been engaged in the work, and fully 2,000 of them will be dispensed with at the end of the month, when the sheds will be finally completed. It is expected that a number of the men will come for a flying trip to this coast on special cars at a reduced rate of fare, but the majority will return to their homes in the east. The snow sheds have cost in all, including the labor and material, fully $1,500,000. No block is expected on the railroad during the winter, the sheds being sufficiently strong to bear the strain which it is expected will arise from the heavy accumulations of snow which is supposed will slide over them in the future. The company has arranged to retain the services of about 1000 of the men who will remain in the mountains until next spring, engaged in cutting cordwood for the use of locomotives along the line, the understanding being that the men will, when called upon, act as snow-shovellers at the rate of $1.25 per day wages, and clear any obstruction off the line which may block the traffic. Mr. Griffith said last winter he was for four months in a valley 7000 feet deep at the foot of Mount Carroll, (2 miles east of Roger's Pass), and during the whole of that period he never saw the sun, the summit of the mountain being so lofty and the valley so deep that Sol during his daily course never rose sufficiently high to be observed.

EDMONTON GOLD.

The flurry of excitement that was caused recently by the alleged discovery of gold near Edmonton has received its quietus. The Bulletin of the 23d Oct., says: Messrs. Smith, Ross, Burleigh and Coghlan arrived from the Haney mines on Tuesday evening. Their trip was made on the report of the discovery of the placer diggings by J. Juneau. Both Smith and Burleigh are practical miners, the latter having a longer experience on this river than any other man on it. He prospected the place where Juneau claimed to have found gold and declares there is not a color. Certainly there is no gold that can be secured by ordinary process in that or any of the many other similar places where Burleigh prospected. On the way down the party passed Juneau also on his way down with his outfit, having given up the project. Burleigh thinks Juneau was deceived in his test by using quicksilver that had been used before, and which had retained a portion of the gold with which it had been amalgamated, but which was squeezed out and secured when he made the test. None of the party had much experience in quartz mining, but have a poor opinion of the prospect in that locality.

A MISSING BRITISH COLUMBIAN.

A late Ottawa paper contains the following item: "Messrs. Hodgins, Kidd and Rutherford, barristers, have been retained by the relations of Mr. J. MacNab, to look up his estate and interests in British Columbia. It will be remembered that a few months ago Mr. MacNab left Victoria to go into the interior of the country, and has not since been heard from. Mr. Ed. Rutherford leaves this week for British Columbia to look up the particulars of the fate and estate of the missing gentleman."

EAST POINT LIGHT.

It is reported that Mr. Fraser of Vancouver has been awarded the contract for the construction of the Dominion lighthouse on East Point, Saturna Island.

FOUR-OARED RACE.

Hanlan's Crew of Oarsmen Defeat Another Good Crew With Ease To-day.

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The four-oared shell race between Hanlan, Teemer, Hamm and Ten Eyck, in one boat and Ross, Lee, Butt and Perkins in another, was rowed to-day on the Thames. Hanlan's crew won easily. The race was for one hundred pounds aside. The course was from Battersea Old Church to a flag boat moored opposite to the Gwyn engineering works at Hammersmith. Hanlan's crew made a better start and soon had a lead of one length. This was increased at the end of the first half-mile to two lengths and to four lengths when Putney was reached. Hanlan's crew then won easily.

THE CZAR AND BULGARIA.

SOFIA, Nov. 8.—The Czar has telegraphed to Kaulbars directing him to convey his thanks to the Bulgarians who show a desire to comply with the Imperial councils.

Kaulbars has caused a report to be circulated that Prince Ferdinand, of Hohenzollern, will shortly be proclaimed a successor to the king of Roumania.

The Russian ironclad, Mercury, has arrived at Bourgaria, the scene of the recent revolt and is at anchor in the harbor.

LONDON'S SOCIALISTS.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—Socialist meetings were held in all parts of London yesterday and to-day. They protested against stopping the proposed procession and meeting in Trafalgar Square on the Lord Mayor's day. The leaders repeated their determination to hold a meeting in Trafalgar Square.

FIRE IN A CATHEDRAL.

GRAW, Hungary, Nov. 8.—A fire has occurred in the cathedral here, destroying several pictures and damaging the interior badly. The edifice had a narrow escape from total destruction. This cathedral is considered the most magnificent modern building in Hungary.

THE CZAR RUNNING IT.

SOFIA, Nov. 7.—Geschoff, Minister of Finance, has resigned. It is announced from St. Petersburg that the Czar intends to entrust the administration to the Russian Senator Stonjanowski until a Prince has been legally elected.

MARINE ITEMS.

Notice has been given that the fog signal at Cape Flattery will be discontinued from Nov. 9th to Nov. 20th, inclusive, during repairs.

The Sardonyx arrived at San Francisco on Saturday, 26 days from Victoria. She lost her rudder on the trip, and during the latter part the men were placed on short rations. She was brought into port by the wrecking steamer Whitelaw.

The steamer Mexico arrived from San Francisco this morning at 4 o'clock.

The steam collier Barnard Castle, Capt. Urquhart, arrived from San Francisco at 5 a. m. to day and proceeded to Departure Bay to load.

The Emma Crowell and Elsinore are are on their way to this port, the former from China in ballast, and the latter from the Hawaiian Islands.

AMERICAN HAPPENINGS.

FOUNDERED.

The U. S. Steamer Manhattan Supposed to Have Foundered with all on Board.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 7.—It is said that the U. S. steamer Manhattan foundered about 9:30 this morning, 21½ miles off this harbor and sunk immediately, carrying down all on board. The cause is not known; it is supposed the crew numbered 25 souls.

The Manhattan came into this port yesterday afternoon for shelter and started out, presumably for New York, about nine o'clock this morning. The wind was blowing a gale and a tremendous sea was running. Just after passing the breakwater and getting into the full force of the gale blowing up the Sound, she was seen by William King, an oyster dealer living at Oyster Point. He watched her through his glass, and as she appeared to be laboring heavily and was in apparent distress, he ran to the telephone and tried to notify some of the tugs in port. When he returned the vessel was still to be seen and seemed to be in great trouble. Five minutes later she had disappeared. He is of opinion that she went down with all on board. He states under the most favorable circumstances she could not have steamed out of sight inside of twenty minutes. There is no way of positively confirming the identity of the vessel to-night or to obtain full particulars, as nothing in the harbor could leave for a search outside. Brantford, eight miles east, reports a large quantity of wreckage coming ashore and strewn along the shore for two miles.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

Another account of the U. S. revenue steamer Manhattan, Lieut. Commander Tosier in command, says she went to the bottom off southwest ledge, two miles outside this harbor at 9:20 this morning. At the time the vessel sank there was a heavy sea on with a fierce gale blowing. Custom House officials seem to know very little about the vessel's mission in these waters, but think she was on special duty, such as setting of buoys; examination of lighthouses and looking after coasting vessels, seeing their papers were properly made out, etc.

A GREAT LEAP.

Lawrence Donovan Successfully Jumps From the Suspension Bridge—Slightly Injured in Consequence.

NIAGARA FALLS, Nov. 7.—Lawrence Donovan, of New York, who recently jumped from the Brooklyn bridge, jumped from the Suspension Bridge five minutes before seven this morning. He came from Buffalo last night. His jump was witnessed by only 4 or 5 persons. He was accompanied by Professor Saley and Mr. Drew. He made the jump successfully, going straight down feet foremost. He is not seriously injured. One rib is probably broken and his hip is bruised. He said before he got out of the water that he would not jump again for a million dollars; he afterwards said he would jump next summer for $1000. He said he wanted to jump the Genessee Falls at Rochester, and then quit the business.

THE TICHBORNE CLAIMANT

A Veritable Imposter in Another Fraudulent Role, Arrested in New York.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Arthur Orton, who claims the title to the Tichborne estate in England, was arrested on Saturday night at his boarding house, Brooklyn, on a warrant by the U. S. Commissioner upon complaint of the Pension Department at Washington. Orton is charged with having impersonated Chas. Curtis, who is alleged to have served in the 106th New York Volunteers and with endeavors to draw the pension of the alleged Curtis. Orton is in Raymond street jail in default of $2500 bail. He will be heard on Tuesday.

A SAN FRANCISCO MURDER.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 7.—Early this evening Mrs. Anna Yanagiswa, keeper of a Japanese boarding house at 907 Clay street was shot and killed by Konomishi Hogashi, a jealous suitor. The murdered woman, who was very pretty, had been deserted by her husband. Since the desertion she has had many suitors, among whom was Hogashi, by occupation a waiter, who thought he was not receiving enough attention. Hogashi surrendered himself at the police station, and was charged with murder. He is about 35 years old, the same age as his victim.

TRAVELING AROUND THE WORLD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—Thos. Stevens, whose tour around the world on a bicycle has made him famous, arrived in Hongkong, Oct. 4th. He was not permitted to cross into Afghanistan so he took a steamer at Calcutta to Hongkong and from the latter place he goes on his bicycle to Canton; thence to Shanghai, where he will take steamer for Japan.

FROM THE ORIENT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—The S. S. City of Sydney arrived to-day with Hongkong dates to Oct. 12th and Yokohama dates to the 21st. Cholera was abating in Japan.

Mr. Geo. Billey, the popular accountant and paymaster for Messrs. Bell, Lerkin & Patterson and Leakin, Connolly & Co., will remain in Victoria this winter.

Mr. James Millar returned to the city Saturday from his fishing station on Borough's Bay at the mouth of Juneau river. His sons remain there for the winter, making barrels and preparing for next years operations. The season was not up to Mr. Millar's expectations. There was no scarcity of fish, but his appliances were not of the kind best adapted for the efficient prosecution of the business. This will be remedied for next year's operations. Mr. Millar reports that many miners had gone into the interior from his station, but as they had not returned up to the time of his leaving he could not give any idea as to the result of their explorations.

THE QUEBEC PLATFORM.

By many it has been asserted that the RIEL question was the only one of any moment that was being discussed in the province of Quebec during the recent contest. The ministerial press was pronounced in its declaration that Mr. MERCIER had no other platform or any with which to appeal to the country. However, we find that the policy advocated by his party, after all was the ground work for the confident and successful appeal which the Liberals in Quebec made to the electorate. The following are some of the planks in the Liberal platform, and are such as must commend themselves to all fair minded men. We quote but ten of the measures advocated:

(1.) An energetic maintenance of the principle of Provincial autonomy against all attacks, direct or indirect. (2.) Complete decentralization and extension of municipal powers. (3.) The maintenance of all the religious and other guarantees upon which our present system of public instruction is founded. The practical direction of education in the direction of agriculture, technical and professional studies. (4.) Respect and protection for all the rights of the minorities. (5.) The immediate adoption of energetic and practical measures to improve the financial situation of the Province and to prevent direct taxation. (6.) Economy in the public expenditure and suppression of immigration and administration which are not strictly indispensable to the public services in order to increase to a corresponding extent colonization grants; reform in the system of Ministerial bookkeeping, which has given rise to so many abuses. (7.) The amendments of the laws and regulations respecting Crown lands in a sense favorable to colonists, to the protection of our forests, and looking to their proper development by merchants in good faith. (8.) Electoral reform in its widest sense, with a view of making the ballot accessible to all classes of society, especially teachers, sons of farmers and mechanics, clerks, students, etc. (9.) Reform in the laws respecting masters and servants, and the better regulation of the work of women and children. (10.) Judiciary reform, with a view to making suits less protracted and less expensive."

PAID FOR ARTICLES.

The Halifax Herald in a recent issue explained that an article which appeared in its columns on whiskey was a paid advertisement. The Tory organ in Halifax in that respect finds its affinity in the Colonist in this city, which, for a monetary consideration, barters its columns to the most colossal of humbugs. The loyalty of the "boodle" organs is guaged by the amount of patronage given it. For instance, according to the public accounts, the amount of printing patronage given the undermentioned press for the respective years named may in a measure account for its fidelity to the powers that be at Ottawa:

	1883.	1884.	1885.
Montreal Gazette	$3,240	$ 9,948	$ 7,153
Hamilton Spectator	....	6,801	1,475
Mail and Mail Publishing Co	4,473	11,082	7,216
London Free Press	5,448	6,416	10,735
H. W. Bennett and Press-cost Messenger	2,021	5,283	2,200
J. J. Foote, of Quebec Chronicle	1,190	4,583	5,002

The total paid in 1883 for immigration pamphlets was $42,605.09, the paper for the same cost $16,371.06; the total paid in 1884 for immigration pamphlets was $81,667.06; the paper for the same cost $27,660.79; the total paid in 1885 for papers, printing, and subscriptions through the Immigration Department was $90,812.00; the total paid for advertising in 1883 was about $50,000, in 1884 $54,079.86, in 1885 $50,000. Grand total, $413,197.05. In the face of these figures, remarks a contemporary, it is not necessary for any Tory organ to explain that some of its articles are paid for. The difficulty is to determine what articles the organs publish that are not paid for, and paid for at very extravagant rates.

A REPORT comes from Washington that, as a result of the efforts of the Canadian Government, the draft of a new extradition treaty is ready for presentation to the United States Senate for its adoption at its next meeting. This statement is supported to some extent by the declaration of Mr. J. G. MOYLAN in a recent interview that the Dominion Government has been laboring earnestly to secure an enlarged treaty.

THE Government organ at the Capital hints that another session of the Dominion Parliament will be held before the general election. This hint is possibly thrown out to get the Liberals off their guard, though many Tory members who have visited the Capital recently say that unless they are given an opportunity of drawing another $1,000 sessional indemnity they will not offer for re-election.

TARIFF REFORM.

During the late election campaign in the United States the question of tariff reform was one of the most prominent topics discussed both in the press and on the platform. Some time ago, as was noted in these columns, the Republicans of Minnesota not only endorsed the action of two Republican members who had voted for consideration of Morrison's tariff bill, but declared unequivocally in favor of the tariff reform. It is also to be noted that the Democrats all along the line are giving the tariff a prominent place in their platform and forcing a vigorous discussion of that issue at all public meetings; and the indications are at the next presidential election tariff reform will be one of the most prominent planks in the platform of the Democratic party. Another very significant feature of the situation is an admission recently made by Mr. BLAINE, who has been stumping Pennsylvania in the interests of the Republicans and protection. At a meeting recently held in Pittsburg, he admitted what tariff reformers have repeatedly asserted during the past two years, that, in consequence of the steady reduction of the national debt, a change in the methods of federal taxation in the United States cannot be much longer delayed. Among other things he said: "I venture the assertion that there has not been since the national election of 1860 a financial crisis so urgent and pressing as the one which will be upon the American people within the next two years." In making this admission Mr. BLAINE has abandoned the position held by the Republican party at the last presidential election respecting the tariff. As the Boston Herald puts it, "he has conceded half of the battle to the tariff reformers by admitting that he and the members of his party have previously denied that the tariff revision was an immediate and imperative necessity." The Republican leader having admitted the necessity for tariff revision, the question merely becomes: "What policy shall be pursued in making the tariff revision?" Mr. BLAINE has not defined his policy on this point, but his speeches in Pennsylvania indicate that he still clings to the idea that all the main features of the protective tariff must be retained, even if a reduction in the rate of duty be allowed. The Democrats, on the other hand, take clear ground. They declare for a revenue tariff, pure and simple, sweeping reductions in the rate of duty, transfer of manufacturers' raw material to the free list, and a general simplification of the tariff. There seems to be no good reason to doubt that the Democrats will come out of the struggle at the next Presidential election sufficiently strong to put their policy into practice and secure for the country the blessing of genuine tariff reform.

Even in the New England States, the home and centre of the manufacturing industries of the country, tariff reformers are increasing in numbers rapidly. A few days since, at a meeting held in the Parker Memorial Hall, Boston, Mr. WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON, in discussing the subject, said:

"There are many idols left intrenched in public affection, and foremost among them, fraudulent, pernicious and indefensible, is the idol called protection. It is fraudulent because its name is an alias, because it pretends to protect when its purpose is plunder. It is pernicious, because it takes from the pockets of the many to add to the enrichment of the few, and defends the proceeding with false excuses which debauch the reason of men. It is indefensible, because the Creator never endowed mortals with the ability to demonstrate the wisdom of selfishness. It sprang from barbarous times and peoples, and in the light of this century is an anomaly and an offence. I said protection is an alias. It has stolen a fair name in which to hide its nature. It has no element of protection. Its true name is restriction. It dreads plenty and thrives on scarcity. It artificially decreases the comforts of humanity. It makes enemies of nations; it erects barriers to trade; it wars with the beneficent design of creation that gave us a world of diverse products, that mankind might profit by the exchange. It cherishes the mysterious ideal of selling much to persons without buying from them in return. In the popular mind, a tariff is somehow a burden upon foreign nations. In truth, it is a tax which we force ourselves alone to pay. As citizens and patriots, we welcome taxation for the support of government, that in turn protects us. But taxation that levies upon us for the benefit of favored individuals transcends the right of any government and outrages individual freedom. There is no warrant for it in the constitution."

At the meeting referred to General M. M. TRUMBULL, of Chicago, made two important statements which are worthy of being pondered by Canadians who are beginning to feel keenly the galling yoke of protection, mild though your yoke be compared with that which is borne by the people of the United States. The first statement was that there was more bloodshed in the United States during the labor riots of five years ago than in England from labor troubles during the past forty years. The second statement was that to-day, in the United States, par excellence the land of protection, one million workingmen are out of employment. The workingmen of the United States are beginning to find out by bitter experience that protection does not protect them—while the tariff may to some extent restrict the importation of foreign labor.

IT is announced by cable that the Indian and Colonial Exhibition will be opened as a permanent institution in June next. The present exhibition, which closes on November 10th, has paid its way—that is taking the receipts for admission and the large contributions by the British and Colonial Governments, there is a surplus. One report says it amounts to $300,000, and that it will be turned over to the jubilee fund of the Colonial Institute. "Charges," it is added, "are floating about to the effect that this sum ought to be much greater, and accusations are freely made that there has been extravagance, or perhaps, worse, in the management of the exhibition. But the public will never know whether this is true or false, as it is unlikely that any figures will be published."

The man who answered the summons happened to be a Greystone woman, and knew Jenny well by sight. Much surprised she looked to behold the daughter following the father so quickly, for the deacon had not left the house five minutes when Jenny arrived.

"Can I see Dr. Shaw?"

"Yes, miss, I think so," replied the servant, taking it for granted that Jenny knew her father had just called. "Will you walk in, please?"

Now, Dr. Shaw was at this moment vehemently pacing the study, and revolving, with mingled emotions of horror, doubt and rage, the communication Strangfield had made to him. Five minutes is no time for such spirits as his to grow calm in; and, with a desperate frown upon his forehead, he was muttering eagerly to himself, and in a quite audible key, when Jenny was announced.

"Show her in!" he exclaimed, astounded, and rooted himself against the table, confounded by this utterly unexpected and entirely new condition of the trouble that had come upon him.

The strange, pale beauty of Jenny's face, and the hint of pride, and the sorrowful dignity in her manner which were there through her hard and violent effort after courage, made the old man stare at her with unaffected surprise. Then, with an elaborate old-fashioned bow, he saluted her, and coming round the table, placed a chair. She addressed him at once in a sweet, plaintive voice, fixing her sad eyes on him.

"I have to beg your pardon for calling on you, but I am seeking my husband, whose home is here. They tell me he is gone; but I cannot believe that he would have left me without sending me a message; and, in my sorrow, whom should I come to but my husband's father!—though indeed, indeed, nothing but my misery would have made me intrude upon you."

"No intrusion, Miss — Miss Strangfield—at least, ahem! I am so much taken by surprise, madam, so little qualified at this moment to—to——"

The old gentleman smothered his incoherence with another bow, and, pulling out his snuffbox, looked shyly and frowningly upon the floor.

"It should have been Cuthbert's duty to tell you we are married. I know he had not done so, for last night he was to have seen father and broken the news to him; but he did not come, and this morning they say he is gone. Oh, Dr. Shaw! can you tell me where he is? Do you know? Have pity on me, sir! Without him I am very, very lonely; and if he does not bear witness to what I say I—I——"

The poor girl broke down, biting her lip to subdue her tears, lest the sight of them should anger the old gentleman.

"I positively assure you that I am as ignorant of his whereabouts as yourself," he replied hastily, that she might not labor under a wrong impression one moment longer than he could help. "His ungrateful conduct has wounded me to the heart. All last night I sat up waiting for him, not doubting that he would return. But—may I ask you if you are aware that your father has just left me?"

She shook her head.

"He and I have been discussing the subject, and I can only trust," continued the doctor, "that, to my son's unnatural conduct to his father, he has not added a deeper, a more unpardonable, an incurable offense."

"I am truly his wife, sir."

"True! Pray forgive me; I may lay rough fingers on a wound my heart would choose they should touch tenderly. But let me ask you, when were you married to my son?" said the doctor, forcing his voice into a tone of suave composure; for emotion could not be permitted to qualify his dear delight in asserting his elegance and breeding.

"Three weeks ago," replied Jenny anxiously, with her heart beating painfully, for she feared the next question.

"He was in London three weeks ago. He went for a little holiday, as at that time I suspected his depression, or absent fits were owing to the monotony of our scholastic discipline. Were you in London then?"

"No, sir; I was at Sydenham stopping with my aunt Rachel. I met Cuthbert, by appointment, on a Wednesday morning at the bottom of the hill on the road to Dulwich, and there we took the coach that passed and afterward, when we reached London, he put me into a hackney coach and we drove to a church, where we were married."

The doctor applied a pocket handkerchief to his forehead.

"A strange rascal!" he muttered to himself. "I had never given him credit for so much duplicity." And then he sighed and looked through the window and, recollecting himself, forced his voice into suavity once more and said:

"I represented to your father that nothing could be easier than to prove your marriage. If, as I do not doubt," (with a bland wave of the hand) "you are my son's wife, I—I scarcely know whether there be cause to offer you my congratulations. Since he has played his father a vile trick there is nothing to hinder him from deceiving you. But each to his kind; you to your father, to whom you are accountable, and my son to me—when he chooses to return."

His whole manner had changed with these words, and he addressed her with an icy hauteur of gaze.

Jenny looked at him fixedly for some moments, with a wonderful gaze of mingled consternation and disdain, and rose.

"I did not come here in expectation of finding sympathy or kindness," she exclaimed, with a bitterness that took a keener acidulation from the very beauty that should have failed to warrant it. "You know whose daughter I am; and what you think of my father Cuthbert has often told me. I have called to know if you can give me tidings of my husband. Doubt my honor as you please, sir; but in God's name, answer me my question."

"I have answered that question," he replied.

"Many of the elder boys of the school and several of the men were dispatched by me this morning to search the shore and the neighborhood, and likewise are inquiries still being made in places beyond Greystone. If I obtain information, be sure that I shall convey it speedily to be conveyed to you. Should he ever return," he continued, in slightly depressed tones, "this trouble he has brought upon you is an account to be settled between him and me, with an adjusting he will not relish."

She was standing near the door, and he was raising his hand to pull the bell; but she had not done with him yet. The change in his manner from the blandness to hauteur, from a kind of tenderness, at least, to a demeanor of blank indifference to her sorrow, deepened her doubt of his sincerity, and, failing to find in this old man any such sorrow for her as his son as should prove him honest to her own mourning heart, a feverish suspicion that he was holding back the truth seized her.

"You can tell me, sir, that he has not left me for good! Say some little word to give me hope! For his sake, Dr. Shaw—he loves me truly!" she cried, with her hands clasped.

The doctor was affronted by her doubt of him, for it was plain in her recurrent appeal.

"I have answered that I am as ignorant as you—perhaps more ignorant," he said, frowning at her.

"Last night," she continued, too bitterly yearning after hope to be abashed by his manner, or even to heed the cruel suggestiveness of his words, "he was to have seen father. This he promised, and I was to watch for him at my window. Oh, sir, he would not have bid me wait for him had he meant to deceive me; for, indeed, he loves me fondly. A gentleman from this school, who called on mother this morning, said that he had seen him leave your house in the evening; and to father he was coming—oh, be sure! Who stopped him, then? Was he followed and set upon? If he had died, or by an accident been killed, his body would have been found. Do you know where he is? Tell me, sir! The Lord God, who hears me declare it, judges me; and before Him I swear thy son was my husband!"

Now, but for the continued and affronting suspicion informing the girl's words, this piteous appeal, taking tragic pathos from wild dry eyes and outstretched hands and shrill intensity of tone, must have roused the doctor though his heart of flesh had been as hard as a pet prejudice. But he was so extremely mortified to find his word—his word, too!—doubted by this wench, that anger came down on all kindly stirrings with a weight of lead, and false perceptions pricked him. For who was this woman but pigheaded Strangfield's daughter? And night not all this bother be a mere trick of the enemy—a plot speedily hatched out of Cuthbert's strange disappearance, to mortify the dignified cultured, well-bred foe of dissent, and champion of orthodoxy and divine rights?

He rang the bell.

"A direct answer had been given you," he said, "and you must excuse me for declining to continue this conversation. I trust, madam, for your own sake, that you will be able to establish the fact of your honorable connection with my son."

And, with dislike and contempt on his face, he made her a short bow. Without another word she passed through the door, which the servant held open, and left the house.

Putting Away Things for Summer.

I have found the best way of putting away things for the summer to be as follows: If you have not a regular camphor trunk, that is, a chest made of cedar wood, take an ordinary trunk or chest, line it well covered, so that it is perfectly tight, and put a layer of camphor gum in the bottom of it. Do up each article separately in a clean cloth, then do them up in brown papers, pasting the ends so they will perfectly tight. What there is about papers ink that moths dislike so, it would be difficult to say, but there is something in it they don't approve of. I speak with a good deal of confidence on this matter, for I have treated furs of all kinds and woolen garments in this way for several years, and I have never had a moth get into a thing that was so protected.—Sally Joy White in Boston Budget.

Origin of the Bird-Wearing Fashion.

The bird-wearing fashion had its origin in Paris. Some seven years ago there appeared at a ball of the demi-monde in that capital a woman wearing on her head quite a dead bird. The bird had artificial eyes and its wings and tail were spread out as if to give it a lifelike appearance. The woman had no thought of "setting a fashion." She wanted to be talked about, and gained her point. The world of virtuous fashionables followed the lead, as usual, and since then millions of the pretty singing birds of the world have been cruelly sacrificed to the insatiable Moloch of Fashion.—Chicago Journal.

Wearing Flowers in the Hair.

There is a perfect rage for wearing flowers in the hair. Flower aigrettes are the fashion for the moment, and all other forms of ornament are at a proportionate discount. A tuft of osprey is introduced among the natural blooms, and owners of single diamonds have an opportunity of displaying them as dewdrops sparkling on freshly gathered roses or lilies. On the corsage, too, large sprays of flowers and foliage are arranged and long, rich trails ornament the skirt.—London Queen.

Flower Show of Los Angeles.

The ladies of Los Angeles, Cal., where a large flower show has just been held, propose next season to have the city park, a whole block in area, covered with canvas and hold the annual flower festival there. These fetes are to be made the great event of the spring season in Los Angeles. The idea of them originated with the ladies.—Chicago Times.

Mrs. Joshee, the Medical Graduate.

Mrs. Joshee, the Hindoo lady who lately was graduated from the Woman's Medical college of Pennsylvania, carefully preserves her caste while in this country to insure her reception in high-caste families in India, and even cooked every one of her own meals and served herself at table.—Exchange.

The Best Way to Clean Ivory.

Wash ivory well in soap and water, with a small brush to clean the carving, and place while wet in full sunshine. Wet for two or three days several times a day with soapy water, still keeping it in the sun with a glass shade over; then wash, again and it will be beautifully white.—Baltimore Herald.

Boil Eggs a Whole Hour.

Aunt Chloe tells The Country Gentleman that most people have very decided objection to hard-boiled eggs, because of their being so difficult to digest; but if any one will try the plan of boiling them for one hour, he will be surprised at the result. When broken, the egg will be light, mealy, and a most digestible article of food.

Good as a Grease Eradicator.

Soft-soap and Fuller's earth, of each half a pound; beat well together in a mortar and form into cakes. The spot, after being moistened with water, is rubbed with the cake and allowed to dry, when it is washed off rubbed with a little warm water and rinsed or rubbed off clean.—Demorest's Monthly.

Allowed No Curtains Nor Carpets.

Florence Nightingale allowed neither carpets nor hangings in the hospitals over which she presided, declaring that nothing so militated against the recovery of the sick. She insisted that no room having either curtains or carpets can be wholesome.—Demorest's Monthly.

Why Queen Margaret's New Bonnet.

Queen Margaret, of Italy, is a wise woman who never follows fashion at the expense of beauty. She utterly refuses to wear the extravagantly high and towering headgear now in vogue. Her bonnet is of moderate dimensions, and therefore all the more becoming.—Chicago Journal.

DR. LEDUC'S PERIODICAL PILLS.

These Pills are compounded from the purest drugs, from those only which are known to act upon the generative organs in females. It is a well known fact that a very large proportion of the ills to which females are liable, are the direct results of suppressed or disordered menstruation, and it is necessary therefore that safe and reliable remedy for the cure of these diseases be placed within the reach of every one. Dr. LeDuc's Pills are the oldest, most generally used, and most reliable remedy for the cure of suppressed menstruation and other uterine diseases, and wherever they have been introduced have driven every other remedy out of the market. They were first introduced into Paris, France, by Dr. LeDuc in 1839, and have so gained the confidence of the public that they have for years been the standing remedy in every household. —In THE TIMES office is to be seen some fine bunches of American Banner Oats, grown on the farm of Dr. Tolmie, Victoria District. These are 6 feet high, with well filled heads. This oat is a prolific one in tillers or branches; one bunch showing fifteen stalks, the product of one grain.

—Mr. McEvoy, who recently arrived from the interior, came out from Cariboo through the Bonaparte Valley, the proposed route of the projected Cariboo railway. He reports the valley as offering an easy, practical route, quite different from any other section of country where railway construction has taken place in the province.

—The selection of Mr. D. McGillivray by the convention which recently met at New Westminster, for the representation of that district does not meet with the approval of the Guardian, nor that of a large number of the electors of the royal city. Conventions failed properly called are everywhere the source of great trouble. Mr. McGillivray notwithstanding the Guardian's hostility will poll a considerable vote in the district.

NEW WESTMINSTER WOOLLEN MILL.

The machinery for the woollen mill at New Westminster has, we learn, been ordered from Lowell, Mass., and is expected to arrive in a few weeks. A month or two will be required to fit it up, after which the music of the shuttle will be heard for the first time in the land. We believe there is a proposition now before the Victoria City Council, from a gentleman in Ontario, to equip and operate a small mill here. It is possible that two one-set mills might succeed in British Columbia, but care should be taken not to overdo the business. The manufacture of wool will be profitable to the extent of the wool product of the province, but could not, in our opinion, be made remunerative if the raw material has to be imported. There is, we are informed, about 75,000 pounds of wool marketed in British Columbia every year. But with local consumption and a ready market, such as mills would produce, the yield would no doubt rapidly increase.

GOOD LIVE STOCK.

By the Rithet this morning Dr. Tolmie shipped to Mr. J. T. Arthur, Ladners Landing, the handsome roan grade bull calf, Oscar, so much admired at the late provincial exhibition. The price paid for this fine specimen of the bovine race was $60. A short time previous to the exhibition, the doctor shipped another calf, for a like price to Mr. Deroche, of Nicomin, Lower Fraser. It is evident our stock raising friends on the mainland are opening their eyes to the necessity of producing better stock. The policy is one certain to be profitable and those who are the first to launch out in this new departure will not only deserve the thanks of the community, but also to any pecuniary reward their enterprise entitles them to. To British Columbia's prosperity our live stock importers and breeders of high class animals are true benefactors and their enterprise and zeal should be commended and patronized.

OCTOBER WEATHER, 1886.

Of clear sunshiny days there were 17. Of alternate sunshine and sometimes heavy showers, 14. Signs of hoar frost on three mornings. Mean temperature, 48 deg. 63m.; maximum temperature, 65 deg. 2nd; minimum temperature, 33 deg. 10th, 11th, 31st; mean of day temperature, 55 deg.; mean of night temperature, 41 deg.; rainfall, 2.23 inches; rainfall to 31st October, 18.51 inches; rainfall October, 1885, 22.20. Growth of grass has been unchecked, although potato tops succumbed to the slight frosts. At this writing [Nov. 7th] mangolds on upland, left in the ground as an experiment, are flourishing. Fall ploughing throughout Victoria district goes on briskly.

BEAT IT WHO CAN.

This (Monday) morning Dr. Tolmie brought to our office, and where it is now on exhibition, a potato weighing 5½ lbs. This we believe is the largest on record, and we want to hear of one that will equal, let alone beating it. Who will say that the soil adjacent to this city and throughout the Island of Vancouver is not adapted to the growth of the mealy tubers? In ploughing up this monster a portion of the potato was broken off, weighing about half a pound. It is a perfect sample, solid throughout, and withal a splendid specimen of what our soil is capable of producing. Now trot out your large potatoes!

ON HER MUSCLE.

A portly woman, who displays the sign of a nurse on her door on View street, on Saturday night last threatened to use a slung shot on an oyster saloon keeper. She was promptly taken into custody by Officer Smith and escorted to gaol, but on putting up $10 bail was liberated. This morning the bail was forfeited for non-appearance, but before the court adjourned the Amazon stalked into court and demanded a hearing. The court, however, refused to stir up the dirty puddle, and the lady retired, muttering vengeance against her enemy.

REMEMBRANCE OF BYE-GONE DAYS.

Mr. J. H. Innes, of the naval yard, Esquimalt, brought with him from England a photo of Capt. Barfield, who for many years commanded various H. B. Co. barks plying between England and this port. Mr. Innes met the gallant captain in England, when he related some of his experiences in the far-off Hudson Bay. The photo represents the captain in a fur suit after having traveled over 600 miles to a white settlement from where his bark, the Princess Royal, was lost in Hudson Bay by being crushed in the ice.

EARLY DEATH.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Baker, of the Dew Drop Hotel, met with a severe affliction in the death of their son Isaac, on Thursday afternoon. The deceased was a bright, promising lad, fifteen and a half years of age, and had only been ill a week. The parents have the sympathy of the citizens generally in this affliction. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, Rev. E. Robson, of the Methodist Church, officiating.—Nanaimo Free Press.

FISHING WITH DYNAMITE.

We have been credibly informed that parties living in Victoria, who are known, are in the habit of using dynamite or some other explosive, for the purpose of killing trout in Shawnigan Lake. Large numbers of dead fish strew the shores of the lake, and one party is known to have brought 300 to the city several weeks ago. The use of explosives for catching fish is illegal, and will be severely punished. The police or game protection society, are invited to look into this matter.

EXTREMELY GENEROUS.

"Friends in need are friends indeed," and in the plural number here refer to the generous employees in A. J. Smith's establishment, who, with a liberality seldom exceeded in any establishment, have jointly subscribed amongst themselves upwards of $150 to aid the unfortunate Mr. Graham, now lying in St. Joseph's Hospital, who continues to progress slowly, but surely, towards recovery.

C. P. R. STATEMENT.

The following is a statement of Canadian Pacific earnings and expenses for September: Gross earnings, $959,962; working expenses, $587,073; net profits, $375,189. Increase of net profits compared with Sept., 1885, $18,325. For nine months ending Sept. the gross earnings are $7,036,787; working expenses, $4,729,729; net profits, $2,507,058; increase of net profits compared with nine months last, $217,035.

HEAVY RAIN FALL.

For thirty years previous to 1886, the greatest rainfall at Sitka, Alaska, during the month of September, according to Russian and American meteorological records, was thirteen inches. But last September was an extraordinarily wet month and the record has been more than doubled, the registered fall of rain amounting to twenty-five inches.

Mr. Sam Adler has returned from Granite creek.

Mr. A. Stevenson, wife and family, of Cariboo, are at the Oriental.

Mr. James Stewart, of Cache creek, is at St. Joseph's Hospital, ill with congestion of the lungs.

Mr. W. A. Baillie Grohman left for England on Saturday.

Mr. David Oppenheimer, of Vancouver, is in the city.

Mrs. D. W. Higgins arrived home from San Francisco this morning.

Mr. D. A McFarland and wife returned this morning from a trip to San Francisco.

At the Clarence: Mrs Watkins and daughter, Nanaimo; A C Thicke, Vancouver; J W Ayret, Vancouver; Chas DeWitt New York.

At the Driard: R H Benedict, Port Moody, H J Mudge, Montreal; D Lyal, London; J Baker, St Paul, Min; N J Eckersley, England; C Marson, England; Capt L M Starr, Oakland, Cal; E Lobe, L Pierce, C E Cushing, San Francisco; H B LaRue, Philadelphia; C V Boisot, Buenos Ayres.

Capt. L. M. Starr was a passenger by the Mexico en route to Seattle, where he has large property interests.

Messrs. Fred Maclure and W. C. Ward, jr., left for the Mainland yesterday. They have gone to Matequi for a couple of weeks' shooting, where it is reported duck, grouse, deer and other game are abundant.

The Rev. Alex. Dunn, for many years pastor of the Church of Scotland, Langley, has returned to the Province after an absence of several months in the east. Mr. Dunn is now a missionary for the Canada Presbyterian Church, having joined that body lately.

Mr. Gideon Robertson, real estate broker and commission merchant, returned from an extended trip through the eastern cities on Saturday evening. He was absent about two months, and the trip appears to have agreed with him. He reports business as looking up in Toronto, Montreal, Hamilton and other leading manufacturing centres. He met with many enquiries relative to this province, the completion of the C. P. R. having increased the interest taken in British Columbia throughout the east. With the growth of Winnipeg he was surprised, as well as the vastness of the Northwest and its illimitable possibilities. Mr. Robertson is certain that a large immigration will flow thither to this province after the holidays.

Mr. T. P. Powell, of the Montreal Witness, is in the city. He is one of a party that reached Victoria on Saturday night from the east. Mr. Powell represents an excellent journal—one of the few consistent political and semi-religious journals in the country. He is very favorably impressed with the magnitude of the country west of Montreal, and the vast extent of its agricultural resources. The trip across was a pleasant one. North of Lake Superior, and west of Winnipeg, considerable cold weather was encountered. On the prairies, west of the Hat, the wind was so strong that an empty box car was moved from a siding on to the main line. It was discovered by the engineer before any damage was done. Like all travellers, he gives the Selkirks and the Rockies the palm for sublimity of scenery over anything he has seen in Britain, Ireland or on the continent of Europe. Not having seen much of Victoria, as yet, he cannot express an opinion.

Passengers from Burrard Inlet on the R. P. Rithet last night: G F Kyle, C Benedict, J Calderwood, J L Middlebrook, F Brown, W Dufour, Miss Grant, Leary and wife, T J Hatton, Capt Gale, G Hauck, Dr Armour, G F Smith, J Hughes, D W Ross, J S Baker, B Van Volkenburg, Thicks, G Crozer, J A Johnson, J Leonard, G Martuis.

THE LATE J. C. HUGHES.

Death of an Old and Highly Esteemed Resident at New Westminster.

A telegram from New Westminster informs us that Mr. J. C. Hughes, who is widely known throughout the Province, died at his home in that city at 6:40 this morning. This lamentable announcement will occasion a sincere sorrow in the breast of every person who knew the deceased, for there are few men in British Columbia more highly respected or whose death would create more genuine grief than will the untimely removal of this worthy citizen. Of an affable and generous disposition, and possessing a rare intelligence, he was an agreable conversationalist, and on all public questions, especially those affecting the interests of this Province, was remarkably well informed. Deceased was born at Ottawa, in the County of Peterboro, Ont., and came to this Province in 1862. His first employment was in Bailey's red store on Yates street, this city, and in 1863 he became an express messenger for Deitz & Nelson, between New Westminster and Fort Yale. Afterwards he was transferred to Moodyville, where for several years he was employed as bookkeeper for Moody, Nelson & Co. After the first election for the local house, upon this Province joining the confederation, in 1871, he was elected as the representative of New Westminster District, serving for one term. In 1876 he was appointed government agent at New Westminster, a position which he retained until two years ago. Last summer he received the appointment of Indian agent at Metlakatlah; and it was during a visit to that place that the first symptoms of his fatal illness first became manifest. For this post he was eminently qualified, and had his life been spared he would undoubtedly have discharged the onerous and difficult duties of the office with great advantage to the government and to the best interests of the Indians. Deceased was also a prominent member of the Masonic order, being a Past Grand of the lodges at Moodyville and New Westminster and a member of the Grand Lodge. His illness, lasting several weeks, was not deemed serious until a few days before his death, and his demise will therefore take the public by surprise. He leaves an estimable wife [formerly Miss DeBeck] and three or four children to mourn his loss. His brother, Henry, who survives him, is living in New Westminster; their mother having died at Moodyville some three or four years since. He carried one life policy for $3000, and probably others. The funeral will take place to-morrow at 2 p. m., and we understand several of his friends from this city will attend and pay the last mark of respect to their departed friend.

OUR FISHERIES.

The Dominion Government has received advices that several schooners will engage in the fishing industry in British Columbia waters next season, owing to the satisfactory reports brought back by the Pathfinder exploratory expedition. The fishermen of the whole country are turning their eyes upon the vast fishery possibilities of the Pacific coast, which the opening of the C. P. R. will render profitable. Much interest is manifested as to whether the black cod of British Columbia will in the future be a serious competitor with the staple product of the coast of Newfoundland.

We are constantly receiving the latest SHEET MUSIC and MUSIC BOOKS.
